

Violinist Chris steps in to save the day

KING'S Sutton violinist Chris Windass has stepped in to save the day for the Banbury Symphony Orchestra.

The orchestra was left without a violin soloist for a concert on March 21 when talented young musician Alison Dods fell and broke her wrist.

This was obviously a major upset to the orchestra but Mr Windass, who is well known to local audiences from the Music in Adderbury concerts, has agreed to step into her shoes to perform Mendelssohn's beautiful Violin Concerto at the concert in Deddington Church.

The concert will also feature the Fourth Symphony by Tchaikovsky and the Russian and Ludmilla overture by Glinka.

The conductor will be Paul Willett and tickets at £5 or £2 are available from Deddington Post Office, Ottakar's book shop and the One Man Band music shop in Banbury.
