FROM THE CHAIRMAN

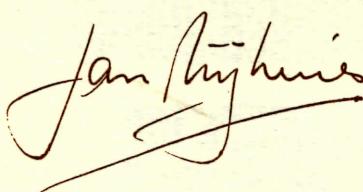

Welcome to the last Concert in our 1988/89 season in the lovely Church of St Mary's in Adderbury, hopefully on a warm summer evening to reflect the Continental/Mediterranean flavour of our programme.

We are grateful to the Delius Foundation for their grant in supporting this Concert and, following the recent instigation of our fund raising drive, we are also hopeful of receiving financial support from local Companies.

The Orchestra much appreciated the "Full House" attendance at the last Concert and is eager to see this trend continue during the Banbury Symphony Orchestra's 1989/90 Season. This will include works by Wagner, Beethoven, Mozart, Dvorak's New World Symphony, Tchaikovsky's Violin Concerto in which the Soloist will be Adderbury artist Christopher Windass and Elgar's Cello Concerto with Thomas Waddups as soloist.

Thank you audience, patrons and advertisers, have a happy summer holiday and we hope to see you all again at our next Concert on the 25th of November.

Sincerely

PROGRAMME NOTES

Rossini - The Barber of Seville
(1792-1868)

This famous overture was originally composed in 1813 for Rossini's opera Aureliano in Palmira. It was subsequently used again for another opera Elizabeth Queen of England (1815). Finally, in 1816 it became the overture to the comic opera The Barber of Seville. At the time it was common practise to re-use material from one work in another. Today this sort of thing is rather frowned upon. The opera was hissed at its first performance in Rome but very quickly it established itself as one of the most famous comic operas ever written.

Delius - In a Summer Garden
(1862-1934)

This work is dedicated to the composer's wife Jelka who had created a beautiful garden at their house in Grez-sur-Loing near Paris. Dating from the years 1907-8 it is one of Delius' masterpieces but is most infrequently given in public performances. This is a pity for the work is flawlessly constructed on variation principles with expert use made of a large orchestra. The revised version of this score had a foot note; "Roses, lilies and a thousand sweet-scented flowers. Bright butterflies flitting from petal to petal and gold-brown bees murmuring in the warm, quivering summer air. Beneath the shade of the old trees flows a quiet river with waterlilies. In a boat, almost hidden, two people. A thrush is singing in the distance."

Falla - Interlude and Dance from La Vida Breve
(1876-1946)

Falla is the most famous of a group of Spanish composers which included Granados and Albeniz who made international reputations at the begining of the century. The nationalist opera La Vida Breve won a competition in 1905. But shortly after, Falla moved to Paris where he befriended Debussy, Dukas and Ravel. La Vida Breve was first performed at Nice in 1913, Paris in 1914 and Madrid in 1915. Falla was a fastidious composer who produced a small number of works of high quality that show his interest in Spanish folk music and the work of French composers of the time. He died in Argentina.

INTERVAL

Schumann - Symphony No. 4 in D minor
(1810-1856)

In 1851 this symphony appeared as Schumann's fourth but in fact it was his second and had been written in 1841. He revised it over the years but it was not published until 1891 at the instigation of Brahms. In the revision Schumann had made there were many changes in the work both in its scoring and development. The work is in four movements an introduction leads to a fast movement; a Romanze; Scherzo; and fast last movement. But during the process of revision Schumann intended the work to be played through without a break between the movements. Therefore the work is a curious mixture, part symphonic poem, part symphony. Throughout the work Schumann is especially ingenious in his approach to form and melody.
